Instituto Caro y Cuervo Bogota, Colombia Dorris expressed a similar opinion, writing that while the novel's "first 50 pages are brilliant, provocative, ... they are [an] overture to a discordant symphony" which portrays an "anachronistic" world of machismo and misogyny. Garcia Marquez and other Latin American novelists is in part a narrative strategy for grappling with a social reality so hallucinatory, so irrational that it defies ordinary naturalistic description. Behind the counter five well-dressed Cuban women waited to serve, but the she Marquez... Let us recall that the cities sent the written testimony to the Crown to serve as a record of their loyalty and fulfillment of royal orders.
